

Are we nearly there yet?

We all went shopping

It's an old classic – but guaranteed to get the grey cells in a twizzle.

One person starts and says "I went shopping and bought a ...". The second person repeats the first person's phrase and adds their own item, and on, and on, and on, until someone or everyone forgets who bought what.

The wilder and wackier the items the easier it is to remember, and the more amazing the shopping list becomes. Where else could you have bought a spade, a piece of cheese, a house made of carrots and a dimple for your chin?

In a pickle?

Get live traffic reports for motorways and A-roads wherever you are – call 401 100 from your mobile. Calls cost a minimum of 60p per minute. Mobile rates vary.

For AA breakdown call
0800 887766

or, if calling from a mobile 08457 887766